THE ISRAEL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES
PUBLICATIONS DEPARTMENT

The mandate of the Israel Academy of Sciences and Humanities includes the publication of writings calculated to promote scholarship and science. Titles are selected on the basis of academic merit by an interdisciplinary Publications Committee composed of Academy members.

In the Humanities, the Academy publishes monographs, multi-authored volumes and lectures of lasting worth in history, religion, philosophy, literature, linguistics, art and other areas. Many publications are critical editions of manuscripts and other basic source texts in Judaica and related fields.

In the natural sciences, the Academy publishes authoritative compilations on the fauna, flora and geology of the region and surveys of environmental issues. The Academy's role of advising the government on matters relating to research and scientific planning comes to expression in a series of publications on science policy.

Many of the lectures delivered at events held by the Academy are published in the Proceedings of the Israel Academy of Sciences and Humanities.

Jewish History – Fontes ad Judaicas Spectantes

Greek and Latin Authors on Jews and Judaism

by Menahem Stern

A comprehensive corpus of texts relating to Jews and Judaism by the Greek and Latin authors of Antiquity. The collection furnishes valuable source material on the place of Jews and Judaism in the Mediterranean world during the rise and spread of Hellenism, concluding with concepts of Judaism held by the Neoplatonist philosophers. The writings of each author are accompanied by an introduction, a critical apparatus, an English translation and a detailed commentary in which the sources are examined in the context of the latest scholarship and archaeological findings.

141 The Inscriptions of Tiglath-pileser III, King of Assyria
Critical edition with Introduction, Translations and Commentary

by Hayim Tadmor

Assyrian royal scribes kept detailed records of the epoch-making campaigns and achievements of Tiglath-pileser III (r. 745–727 BCE), founder of the Neo-Assyrian Empire. The fragmentary remains of these inscriptions were discovered at Nimrud in 1845, but most of them were lost or reburied, leaving later scholars to rely on critically flawed editions.

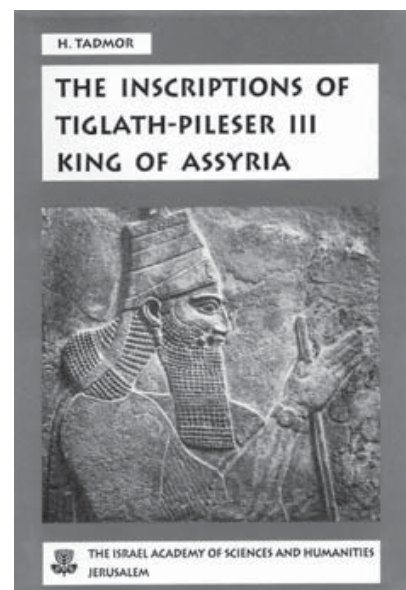

In preparing his new edition, Hayim Tadmor returned to first-hand copies of the texts, many of them prepared at the site. Their evidence is supplemented by related inscriptions discovered at Nimrud and elsewhere. The transcribed Akkadian text is accompanied by a critical apparatus, an English translation and an extensive philological and historical commentary. The introductory material, excursuses and supplementary studies treat a panoply of scholarly issues relating to the texts, including their historical and biblical context. Copious plates show the cuneiform texts in full and illustrate their positions in the original settings.

Jewish Privileges in the Polish Commonwealth Charters of Rights Granted to Jewish Communities in Poland-Lithuania in the Sixteenth to Eighteenth Centuries

by Jacob Goldberg

Critical edition of original Latin and Polish documents, with an English Introduction, summaries and notes. The privileges granted to the Jewish communities in the old Polish Commonwealth played a vital role in the history of Polish Jewry and yield valuable historical information. Volumes One and Two reproduce the texts of 129 community privileges, most of which are from archives and manuscripts collections in Poland. The third, companion volume contains Polish translations of the introductions and explanatory materials in Volumes One and Two.

The Jews in the Duchy of Milan

by Shlomo Simonsohn

A systematic documentary history of the Jews of Lombardy. The records reflect the contacts between the local community and groups of Jewish exiles from France, Germany, Spain and the East, as well as between Jews and non-Jews. The documents, assembled from non-Jewish archives which until now have rarely been utilized for this purpose, are accompanied by English summaries.

The Jews in Piedmont

by Renata Segre

Published jointly with Tel Aviv University.

Piedmont was the chief geographical and political entity in northwestern Italy during the late Middle Ages and early modern times, its history dominated by that of the House of Savoy. Jews, largely of French extraction, settled there permanently and continuously from the second half of the fourteenth century. Their fortunes, their lives and their relations with the surrounding society and its notables are amply illustrated in this series, which, like the series on the Jews of Milan, is based primarily on documentation preserved in the archives of the region. All the documents are summarized in English, with selected texts reproduced in full in the original Latin or Italian.

180 The Jews in the Legal Sources of the Early Middle Ages
Edited with Introductions, Translations and Commentary

by Amnon Linder

Published jointly with Wayne State University Press.

Jewry law, the corpus of legal texts and practices that regulated the life of the Jews in their relations with mediaeval Christian society, is one of the main sources of evidence on mediaeval Jewish history. This volume presents a comprehensive collection of the legal texts bearing specifically on the Jews during the early Middle Ages, from the disappearance of the unitary imperial system in the fifth and sixth centuries to the emergence of centralized governmental structures and the codification of canon law, roughly between the close of the eleventh century and the middle of the twelfth. Each text, reproduced in the original Greek or Latin and in English translation, is accompanied by a short study of its specific history and context.

Die Landjudenschaften in Deutschland als Organe jüdischer Selbstverwaltung von der frühen Neuzeit bis ins neunzehnte Jahrhundert

by Daniel Cohen

Published jointly with Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen.

The Landjudenschaften operated within German Jewry in the early part of the modern era, up to the beginning of the nineteenth century. In contrast with the autonomous institutions – the Va'adim or Medinot – of East European Jewry, which were corporations of communities, the Landjudenschaften, notwithstanding the existence of organized local communities, were essentially associations of individuals. To a large extent, they combined the functions and powers of a local community with those of an intercommunal body.

This three-volume series collects documents pertaining to the Landjudenschaften in German, Hebrew and Yiddish, accompanied by notes and historical commentary in German.

Records of the Trials of the Spanish Inquisition in Ciudad Real

by Haim Beinart

The first complete series of records of trials by the Spanish Inquisition of a specific local group, the Conversos of Ciudad Real. The verbatim testimonies recorded by the trial notaries furnish authentic evidence of the methods adopted by the Inquisition and of the relationships between the Conversos and their Christian neighbours in a city of fifteenth-sixteenth century Castile. The trials are presented in the original mediaeval Spanish, with introductions, genealogies, synopses of trials and notes in English.

History of Eretz Israel

166 Archival Sources for the History of the British Mandate in Palestine (1914–1948)

edited by Dvora Barzilay-Yegar

This electronic catalogue of sources on the history of the British Mandate is the product of a cooperative effort of the British Academy and the Israel Academy of Sciences and Humanities to locate, catalogue, and classify archival documents relating to British Government policy towards Palestine, and to political and administrative relations between the mandatory government and the population of Palestine in the years 1914–1948.

The result of the Israeli team's work is a detailed subject index of relevant documents preserved in some 16,000 files and containers in about 440 previously uncatalogued archives and archival divisions, located in Israel's principal archival institutes and in peripheral ones, such as those of local authorities and settlements. Additional material available at the touch of a button includes information on the nature and accessibility of the archive's contents and, for personal archives, biographical information on the person and his activities in the Mandate period.

This convenient tool spares researchers of the period the tedious work of scouring archives around the country for information relevant to the subject of their research, allowing them to arrive quickly – even from a distance – at the documents they require.

2005. Electronic database on CD-ROM (in English) + 84-page brochure (in English and Hebrew).

172 Tabula Imperii Romani – Iudaea • Palaestina: Eretz Israel in the Hellenistic, Roman and Byzantine Periods
Maps and Gazetteer

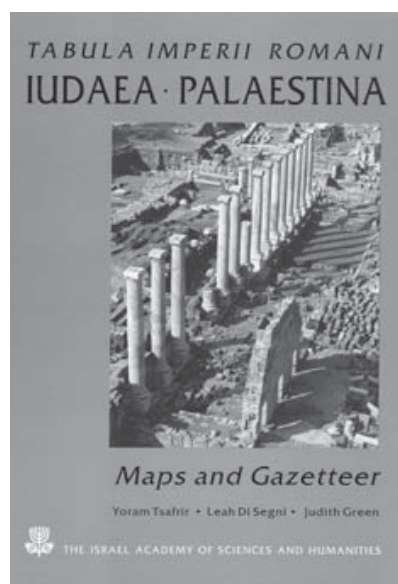

by Yoram Tsafrir, Leah Di Segni and Judith Green with contributions by Israel Roll and Tsvika Tsuk

This volume in the international project of mapping the Roman Empire, the Tabula Imperii Romani, covers the area of the Land of Israel west of the Jordan River, with the addition of the Golan and Sinai. The sites and place-names shown – including cities, villages, synagogues and churches, monasteries and road stations, aqueducts and roads – are those of the Roman and Byzantine provinces of Iudaea and Palaestina, plotted on the basis of archaeological discoveries from the Hellenistic, Roman and Byzantine periods. The accompanying Gazetteer contains short descriptions of the sites, comprehensive references to ancient sources (including epigraphic and numismatic material) and bibliographical references to modern studies.

ISBN 965-208-107-8

1994 (second printing 1998). x + 264 pp., 5 colour maps. 21 × 29 cm. Hard Cover.

NIS 200. Distributed in the U.S. and Canada by the Journal of Roman Archaeology.

Hebrew Palaeography

Codices Hebraicis litteris exarati quo tempore scripti fuerint exhibentes

by Malachi Beit-Arié, Colette Sirat and Mordechai Glatzer

In the series Monumenta Palaeographica Medii Aevi: Series Hebraica; published under the auspices of the Council of Europe and the Union académique internationale. Published jointly with the CNRS, Paris, and Brepols, Belgium.

This series is among the products of the Academy's Hebrew Palaeography Project, whose goal is to document the codicological characteristics – graphic, technical and physical – of all the surviving mediaeval Hebrew manuscripts bearing notations of date, place and copyist, to process and classify these characteristics, and thus to place at the disposal of scholars substantiated means for identifying the provenance and estimating the date of other manuscripts. The collection will include, in chronological order, all of the surviving Hebrew manuscripts in libraries throughout the world bearing dates up to 1280. Each is subjected to a detailed codicological analysis, describing the methods of its production, its design and its subsequent history. All the colophons are transcribed and translated. The manuscripts are accompanied by a rich selection of reproductions in actual size. In French and Hebrew.

Distributed by Brepols, Belgium.

Part I: Jusqu'à 1020

Part I includes the earliest surviving mediaeval Hebrew manuscripts, most of them from the collections of the Russian National Library in St. Petersburg.

ISBN 2-503-50595-3

1997. 136 pp., 55 pls. 30.5 x 44 cm. Hard cover.

Part II: 1021–1079

Part II presents 22 manuscripts bearing dates, half of them fragments taken from the Cairo Genizah. Of the rest, nine are in the Firkovich Collection in St. Petersburg, and one, produced in Italy in 1072/3, is the earliest colophon bearing a date that has survived from Europe.

ISBN 2-503-50895-2

2000. 128 pp., 62 pls. 30.5 x 44 cm. Hard cover.

Part III: 1085–1140

Part III describes 29 manuscripts, most of them fragmentary; only three codices are complete and well preserved. Seventeen (or eighteen) of the manuscripts are Genizah fragments, while nine belong to the Firkovich Collection in St. Petersburg.

ISBN 2-503-51190-2

2002. 120 pp., 83 pls. 30.5 x 44 cm. Hard cover.

Part IV: 1144–1200

Of the 32 manuscripts presented in Part IV, ten belong to the Firkovich Collection in St. Petersburg, whose contents originated in the Middle East; eight – seven of them Genizah fragments – belong to the Bodleian Library in Oxford; and the remainder are kept in various libraries in Europe. The proportion of manuscripts surviving from outside the Middle East is thus higher than in the earlier dated manuscripts, as is the proportion of whole or partial codices as against fragments.

ISBN 2-503-52260-2

2006. 147 pp., 99 pls. 30.5 x 44 cm. Hard cover.

Mediaeval Hebrew Manuscripts

Corpus Glossariorum Biblicorum Hebraico-Gallicorum Medii Aevi

by Menahem Banitt

101 Part I: Le Glossaire de Bâle

The Basel glossary, one of fifteen extant manuscripts of biblical glossaries in mediaeval French, covers I Sam. iii to Amos ix. In this edition, each Hebrew word appearing in the glossary is accompanied by the French rendering and/or Hebrew explanation of the original, a transliteration into Latin characters of the French words and a translation into modern French. In two volumes:

1972. xvi + 194 + 1 pp., 3 pls. 18 × 27 cm. Cloth.

Out of print.

Part II: Le Glossaire de Leipzig

The Leipzig Glossary, composed toward the end of the thirteenth century in the Norman capital of Rouen, is a complete glossary of the entire Hebrew Bible, accompanied by translations of the words of the biblical text into Old French and by numerous rabbinic interpretations. When the Jews were expelled from France in the early fourteenth century, the book was carried to the German-speaking region of southern Alsace, and translations into Middle High German were added in the margins. The parallel appearance of Hebrew, Old French and Middle High German equivalents, the latter two given both in the original vocalized Hebrew characters and in Latin transliteration, makes this text of incomparable importance to linguists of Old French, Yiddish, and early modern Hebrew alike.

163 Guide to Hebrew Manuscript Collections

by Benjamin Richler

Over the past 150 years, large, important collections of Hebrew manuscripts have been dispersed. Formerly private collections are now in public libraries; individual manuscripts and collections have changed hands; call-numbers have been altered; and, for some manuscripts, researchers have coined arbitrary numbers or used abridged signatures and cognomens. Richler's Guide answers the need for a systematic accounting of these wanderings, providing the reader with basic bibliographical information on the manuscripts cited in scholarly literature and with an important tool for locating them.

531 Gershom Scholem – The Man and His Work

edited by Paul Mendes-Flohr

Published jointly with State University of New York Press.

This book presents essays by several of Israel's eminent scholars, reflecting upon Gershom Scholem's impact on the academic Jewish world, and upon his life as a scholar, a Jewish thinker and an activist. The editor has provided an intellectual and spiritual biography of Scholem, which complements the papers by Ephraim Urbach, Joseph Ben-Shlomo, Isaiah Tishby, Rivka Schatz, Malachi Beit-Arié, Nathan Rotenstreich and Joseph Dan. Together, they highlight the enduring significance of Scholem's work, which has remained the touchstone for all further scholarship on Jewish mysticism and Kabbala.

742 Pico della Mirandola's Encounter with Jewish Mysticism

by Chaim Wirszubski

Published jointly with Harvard College.

Three major topics are central to this volume: the history of the Jewish Kabbala during the Middle Ages, its major figures and its doctrines; the Christian Kabbalism of the Renaissance; and Pico himself, his doctrine and his sources.

The book's first section discusses Pico's knowledge of Hebrew and of kabbalistic literature and describes in detail the contents of the four extant manuscripts of Latin translations from the Hebrew prepared for Pico by Flavius Mithridates, a Jewish scholar from Sicily who converted to Christianity.

The subject of the second section is the translator Mithridates, the method and style of his translations, and the scattered interpolations, partly personal and partly doctrinal, which he added to the Hebrew texts.

In the third section, Wirszubski focuses on the role of the Kabbala in Pico's thought. The volume is concluded by twenty-three appendices.

162 The Intellectual Revolt against Liberal Democracy, 1875–1945

International Colloquium in Memory of Jacob L. Talmon

edited by Zeev Sternhell

The issues treated in this volume – romanticism vs. rationalism, nationalism vs. pluralism, militarism vs. humanism, religious/moral values vs. tolerance – are as timely today as they were in the period leading up to the rise of Fascism and Nazism in Europe. The volume brings together in an easily accessible form the approaches and methodologies of eighteen scholars, each an internationally renowned expert in his or her field, unafraid to evaluate critically ideological streams that were and remain crucial to the progress of modern history.

New Methods of Geostatistical Analysis and Graphical Presentation: Distributions of Populations over Territories

by Roberto Bachi

Published jointly with Kluwer/Plenum, USA.

This book presents an integrated system of methods for dealing with geographical statistics (geostatistics) and their applications, making it possible to overcome many of the difficulties encountered in graphically presenting, processing, analyzing and comparing spatial data over different territorial units. The term “population” should be understood in its widest possible sense, to include events such as births, deaths and accidents; establishments and institutions of different kinds; and various services and economic activities – any kind of phenomenon that can be described in spatial–geographical terms. These are the basic building blocks with which this book deals, comparing them with each other and with the geographical features of the territory itself.

Translation into Belorussian (Vilnius Codex 262)

by Moshé Altbauer

Vilnius Codex 262 contains a translation from Hebrew into Belorussian of several biblical books, composed just when Belorussian was emerging in its modern form. The manuscript of the five scrolls is displayed here in a complete photographic reproduction, accompanied by a transcription on facing pages. The introductory chapters and the critical commentary highlight the text's distinctiveness from other, non-Jewish translations of the Bible into Slavic, and its affinity with translations into languages of the Jewish Diaspora. The last portion of the work is a complete Belorussian-Hebrew Concordance, compiled by Dr. M. Taube.

Flora Palaestina

The first Flora specific to Israel and surrounding areas. Its four parts, each comprising one volume of text and one of plates, treat some 2,470 species to be found at this meeting point of four phytogeographical regions. Many of the species and varieties included are described here for the first time or renamed since the second edition of Post's Flora. The descriptions, with few exceptions, are based on plants deposited in the Herbarium of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

208 The Bryophyte Flora of Israel and Adjacent Regions

edited by C. Clara Heyn and Ilana Herrnstadt

Part I: Bryopsida (Mosses), by Ilana Herrnstadt and C. Clara Heyn

Part II: Anthocerotopsida (Hornworts) and Marchantiopsida (Liverworts), by Helene Bischler and Suzanne Jovet-Ast

With drawings by Michal Boaz-Yuval and Esther Huber and colour photographs by David Darom

This new addition to the Flora Palaestina series represents an up-to-date account of the bryophytes of Israel and some adjacent regions. Despite its small area, this region has been found to have an unexpected diversity of bryophytes. The 259 taxa – 220 of mosses and 39 of liverworts – comprises 9% of the described flora of Israel. 87 taxa were recorded in Israel for the first time during the preparation of this Flora.

The surviving editor, Ilana Herrnstadt, was awarded the Medal in Silver of the Organization for the Phyto-Taxonomic Investigation of the Mediterranean area (OPTIMA).

209 Distribution Atlas of Plants in the Flora Palaestina Area

by Avinoam Danin

This volume comprises updated nomenclature, distribution, and habitat data for the species in the area covered in the four parts of Flora Palaestina. The distribution data are presented here in individual maps for each of the species recorded in the study area (defined as lying west of 36°E).

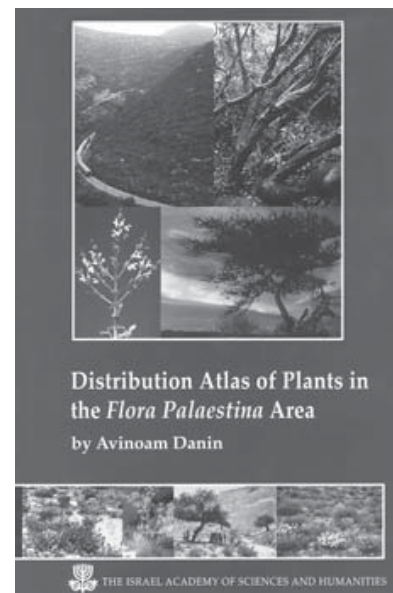

Four main phytogeographical regions – the Mediterranean, Irano-Turanian, Saharo-Arabian, and Sudanian – meet in Israel. The area's broad climatic and edaphic diversity is largely responsible for its botanical wealth – some 9.06 species per 100 sq. km. Of the 2,750 species listed herein, 276 were not previously recorded in Flora Palaestina. The 18,000 species-per-district records that form the basis of Flora Palaestina have been expanded to some 28,400, based largely on the author's investigations over the course of some forty years.

316 Mammalia of Israel

by H. Mendelssohn and Y. Yom-Tov

This is the first systematic presentation in English of information gathered on the terrestrial mammals (including bats) of Israel. The Introduction briefly describes the physical and biological characteristics of the study area; the zoogeography and ecology of the mammals of Israel and the impact of humans on their conservation, distribution, and populations; and the history of mammal research in Israel. The account of each species presents details regarding its distribution, fossil record (when available), karyotype, ecology, diet, behaviour, reproduction, parasites and relations with humans, accompanied by a distribution map, skull photos, and tables of the body and skull characters of specimens deposited in Israeli museums. The documentation is complemented by a rich selection of colour photographs.

ההוצאה לאור של האקדמיה הלאומית הישראלית למדעים מפרסמת כתבים שיש בהם כדי לקדם את המדע, על פי החלטות ועדת הפרסומים. פרסומי האקדמיה כוללים פרות של תכניות מחקר ומפעלים שהיא יזמה ואשר נועדו לשמש תשתית לפעילות מדעית, כל אחד בתחומו, וכן חיבורים שנמצאו מתאימים למדיניות הפרסום של האקדמיה.

רוב הפרסומים במדעי הרוח הם מהדורות מדעיות של מקורות ושל כתבי יד בתחומים כגון תולדות עם ישראל, תולדות המחשבה והדת היהודית, הגות ימי הביניים ולשונות היהודים. מגוון רחב של תחומי מחקר בא לידי ביטוי במונוגרפיות ובקבצים שעובדו מימי עיון ומסדנאות שנערכו בחסות האקדמיה. בסדרה 'דברי האקדמיה הלאומית הישראלית למדעים' מתפרסמות הרצאות שנישאו באירועים שהאקדמיה ערכה בביתה.

בתחום מדעי הטבע מתפרסמים חיבורים בסדרות Fauna ו-Flora Palaestina מטעם ועדת הפאונה והפלורה של ארץ ישראל, שמטרתה לפרסם מונוגרפיות על קבוצות בעלי חיים וצמחים של ארץ ישראל ופרסומים נלווים בתחומי האקולוגיה ומגוון המינים. בסדרת ההרצאות על שם אלברט איינשטיין מתפרסמות הרצאות שנישאו באירוע השנתי של האקדמיה מפי מדענים ידועי שם בתחומי מדע מגוונים.
